

Individual Presentation

Please review this year's conference theme and topics. All presentations need to relate to one or more of conference topics. Please note that the NAC audience is primarily people involved in research or practice of on-the-ground protection and management of natural areas.

An individual presentation is a 15-minute talk followed by 5 minutes of Q&A. These presentations are organized by the conference committee into sessions by topic. Individual presentations are suited to sharing completed research and projects, including background, methodology, results, outcomes and implications for natural areas protection and/or management.

Proposal submission

Please have the following assembled before beginning the electronic proposal submission.

- Presentation title
- Abstract in the style of a peer-reviewed journal article (not to exceed 400 words).

You will also be asked to select which conference topic you feel your presentation addresses.

Proposal Review Criteria

All proposals will be reviewed and scored by the NAC program committee according to the criteria below. The program committee will also consider how the abstract relates to other abstracts we received and fits into the overall program. The committee may accept, decline, or offer an opportunity to present in a different format.

Accepted presentation proposals meet the following criteria:

- Delivers information on a compelling topic germane to the conference theme
- Provides important advances or concepts related to conservation practitioners
- Content is focused on applied concerns to natural areas conservation
- Topic is of clear interest and importance to natural area practitioners
- Demonstrates developing approaches, novel research, and/or efforts relevant to natural areas conservation
- Conference submission is well written, spell-checked, written in complete sentences using good grammar, etc., keeping in consideration that English may be someone's second or third language

NOTE: Each presenter will be required to register for the conference and cover their registration cost and associated expenses.
